

Dear FDA,

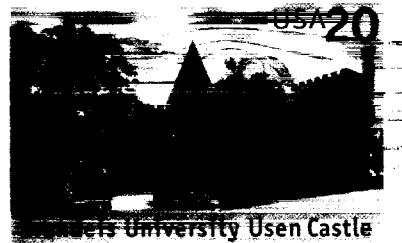

I am writing to ask that you not mislead the public by allowing irradiated food to be labeled "cold pasteurized." My dictionary defines pasteurize thus: "to expose (milk, etc) to a high temperature, usually about 140° F..." It doesn't seem that "cold" and "pasteurizing" are compatible. At some point, the American public is going to demand straightforwardness and ethics - why not start now? I, for one, am pretty fed up with the dishonesty on the gov't's part.

Sincerely, Rebecca C. Glasscock
